James A. Richardson Succumbs To Heart Attacks

In Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, June 26—James A. Richardson, widely known grain dealer and chancellor of Queen's University, died suddenly at his home here today.

Mr. Richardson, who just returned from a trip to the east, was stricken with a heart attack this morning and died a few minutes later. He previously had been in good health. Shortly after he arose this morning, Mr. Richardson suffered an attack and collapsed. He was revived but suffered another attack from which he failed to recover.

LEADING FIGURE

Mr. Richardson, in his 54th year, was one of the leading figures in the western grain trade and also held a prominent place in the field of education. He held a B.A. from the University of Toronto, and was a member of the Canadian committee, Hudson's Bay Company.

PARIS, June 26—Big scale German troop movements along the French frontier in preparation for summer maneuvers, and intensive fortification of the mountain zone, where France, Germany and Switzerland meet, were reported today in French dispatches.

Troop concentrations were observed especially between Trier and Saarbrücken, in the region opposite the big French fortified zone between Bitch and Wissembourg on the northeast frontier, it was said.

It was asserted that the Germans had already fortified the latein-Kreutz mountain region opposite Belfort, where France and Germany join Switzerland, and that the Germans intended to make the area one of the strongest in Europe.

The cabinet met as a formal council of ministers under President Albert Lebrun to consider the negotiations to bring Russia into the British-French anti-aggression bloc.

During the meeting Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet proposed that France intervene in the Spanish Civil War.

BERLIN, June 26—A map published by the newspaper Tagblatt in Hamburg showed today that Germany's East Prussian frontier with Poland is being fortified.

Charges are Subject To Constant Change, Officials Say

Freight rate structure of Canada was described here Monday in an interview by Alastair Fraser, K.C., Montreal, vice-president in charge of traffic, C.N.R.

As being equitable, and subject to constant change, and that it is to remedy any just grievances.

Mr. Fraser pointed out that by the terms of the Railway Act, any company is "prevented from publishing any rates which are unduly discriminatory or unduly preferential."

Some eight or nine years ago, he said, the board of railway companies, now known as the board of transport, was created to conduct an exhaustive inquiry into the freight schedules that prevail in Canada.

That board, he added, is charged with the task of examining any complaint that may be lodged with it respecting alleged discrimination in the application of freight rates.

The board of transport companies, he said, is "well equipped to deal with these matters and it is the company's duty to deal with them."

Mr. Fraser said that "railway companies in Canada are not very happy, advised the city that they have problems in freight rates adjustment, and that the 'adjustment' is being made."

$15,000 Offer On City Property For Federal Building

City commissioners will recommend to council at tonight's meeting that the Dominion government's offer of $15,000 for property at 100 street and 100 avenue for a new federal office be accepted.

The first offer was $16,000, but the Dominion government's surveyor here advised the city that they felt $15,000 was a fairer valuation.

The original price in the assessed value of the property at 100 street and 100 avenue was $10,000.

The federal government plans to build a new office building at that site, and will start work this summer.

Japs String Hot Wire In Blockade

A large fire at night, likely the blaze in Tivoli mentioned in the article.

Japan nailed down its blockade of Tientsin's British and French concessions with bolts of electricity following some attempts at blockade-running. Tokyo's troops strung a 30-mile electric fence like this around the area.

The outer side of the fence is ordinary barbed-wire, but the inner one is held to fence-posts by insulators carrying 1,000 volts to pass them.

She swore also that a second child was born in December the following year, and a third born in a Saskatoon hospital. The accused was father of these children, she testified.

On objection by Mr. Pinmore the accused's father, who was the father of the second child, was not taken into account.

GRAVEYARD STORY This witness told a graphic story of the birth of her child on the accused's father's body, she stated, during her confinement. She stated, by the accused, who performed all necessary surgical work. She saw the baby, her story continued, and later telling her that he had been born in a straw-stalk and set in a coffin.

Mr. MacInnis is the manager of the ballroom, which is operated by Tivoli, Limited, an organization made up of Edmonton businessmen, and he and his family lived in a suite on the second story in the northeast corner of the building.

Greatest personal loss in the swirling flames was sustained by Sino Palace, and the other night members of his orchestra, who lost all their instruments, and a musical library containing more than 200 orchestras. Their loss was estimated at $2,500, none of which was covered by insurance.

LOST INSTRUMENTS Patron and his orchestra arrived here from Vancouver a week ago to accept a summer's engagement at the ballroom.

Anglo-Jap Spite Over Tientsin Affair Gives Boy To Berlin

LONDON, June 26—Prime Minister Chamberlain was asked by Hugh Dalton, Labor, in the house of commons whether it was not clear that delays in the Tientsin blockade negotiations "were giving greatest satisfaction in Berlin and increasing the risk of new German aggression and a general war in Europe."

"That may be so and I hope it is the minds of the Soviet government as well," Mr. Chamberlain replied.

By J. F. SANDERSON

Canadian Press Staff Writer LONDON, June 26—The British and Japanese governments have decided to open negotiations at Tokyo within 48 hours on blockade Tientsin. Sir Robert Craigie, the British ambassador, will represent British interests, while the Japanese ambassador, Sir Kato, will represent Japanese interests.

The Japanese, it is understood, have agreed to lift the blockade of the British concession, soon after the negotiations start. It had been represented to the Japanese government that it would be impossible to continue negotiations any length of time while the concession was called off.

Mr. Chamberlain previously had told the House of Commons he was hopeful that negotiations would be started by Sir Robert Craigie at Tokyo, to the Japanese settlement of the Tientsin incident, which has stretched Anglo-Japanese relations close to the breaking point.

Mr. Chamberlain said one of two members who mentioned the possibility of economic reprisals against Japan to restrain themselves as not to prejudice the negotiations now proceeding in Tokyo.

In an earlier statement he said the British and French governments were in complete agreement in the negotiations to bring Russia into the peace front.

Viccount Halifax, foreign secretary, hoped to send fresh instructions to the British negotiators in Moscow very soon, he said.

Japan Refuses To Investigate Reports

TIENTSIN, June 26—A Japanese spokesman declared today Japan would not investigate reports that a British couple had been killed in the Tientsin blockade.

CHAMBERLAIN WARNS JAPAN, NAZI GERMANY

Britain Can Face Future With Calm Confidence In Strength

CARDIFF, Wales, June 26—Prime Minister Chamberlain told Germany in a speech here Saturday that its nationalistic hostility against Britain and Germany "must remain a dream till Germany is ready to drop her unjust suspicions of others and show that she is sincerely ready to talk sense with reasonable people."

To Japan he said:

"No British government can tolerate that its nationals should be subjected to such treatment as we have heard of in Tientsin and no British government could submit to defiance from another power as to its foreign policy."

GENERAL WARNING And, in a general warning that Britain is in a strong position, the Prime Minister declared:

"An isolated nation has little chance of making its voice heard. And when I compare the state of our armed forces and our ability to resist attack as it today, with what it was only a year ago, I feel that we can face the future with calm confidence in our growing strength."

Mr. Chamberlain said today the most powerful in the world, our army is daily increasing in numbers and in the efficiency of its equipment and as to our air force it was expanded during these 12 months at a rate far beyond our expectations, while in the quality of its personnel and the speed and power of its machines it is unexcelled by the air force of any other country."

He warned Germany against seeing "false and unfounded success" in the future.

R.A.F. UNITS OVERSEAS TO BE INCREASED

Britain Pursues Efforts To Strengthen Empire Defences

By EDWIN JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, June 26.—Sir Kingsley Wood, secretary for Air, told the opening meeting of the Empire Press Union annual conference today that the next two years would see increases in the number of Royal Air Force squadrons stationed permanently overseas as the government pursues its efforts to strengthen Empire defences.

The air minister expressed satisfaction with recruiting for the R.A.F. and its auxiliary services, mentioning that hundreds of youths had volunteered from all parts of the Empire while large numbers of others were being trained under agreements with the Dominion. He added that a large proportion of the raw materials required for the production of aircraft had been obtained from Empire sources.

LINK CANADA, N.Z.
Referring to civil aviation, Sir Kingsley said service would be started in the autumn across the Tasman sea between Australia and New Zealand while suitable bases had been surveyed for a service linking Canada and New Zealand, which would force the last link of the chain of British airways around the world.

He said plans also are in the making for service across the South Atlantic and in the British West Indies.

Sir Kingsley declared that although the problem of defence of the scattered parts of the empire was not difficult, the possibility of reinforcing any part of the Commonwealth in the air within a matter of hours rapidly is becoming a definite possibility.

ULTIMATE ASSET
He added that with such development, including provision of sources of aircraft production in the remote from possible attack, the invention of the airplane, which long had entailed disadvantages to Empire defence, might well prove to be an ultimate asset.

The chairman, Major J. A. Maitland, reviewed the year's work and expressed the hope that this meeting would pave the way for great success to the 1940 conference which is to be held in Canada.

Major G. A. Herbert, British naval air attaché, had charged that a British sailor and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Finlay, were undressed and searched before being allowed to rejoin the Japanese barrier surrounding the blockaded British concession here Saturday.

In giving details of the Finlay incident, Major Herbert said the couple was returning to their quarters, where they were housed in the Japanese barrier surrounding the blockaded British concession here Saturday.

When the examination was finished she said she was allowed to dress and emerged to find her husband, carried only in an undergarment, shoved into the street.

She said Japanese soldiers flung his clothing after him and he dressed in full view of a crowd of spectators. The couple then was permitted to enter the concession.

Kilted Crusaders Invade Edmonton In MRA Campaign

Shock troops of a strenuous world campaign for "moral and spiritual rearmament," a movement intended to alter the destinies of nations through the dedication of men's lives to Christian ideals, nine young, kilted Scotsmen arrived in Edmonton Sunday and will remain here until Tuesday night.

From all parts of Scotland and from all walks of life, they are crusaders for the Oxford Group, "moral rearmament" or "MRA" program. In Edmonton they intend to meet many influential citizens as possible and to recruit for the World Assembly for Moral Rearmament, which takes place in Hollywood, July 19.

All between the ages of 24 and 31, they speak with a "lure" that varies slightly according to the part of Scotland from which they come. But there is no variance in their message on "changed lives," which they believe is the world's only hope for peace.

MAY AVERT DISASTER
"We believe that if we fight hard enough we may avert disaster," George Marjoribanks of Edinburgh told newspapermen who interviewed the group Sunday. Leader of the party, Mr. Marjoribanks is considered by a number of Edmontonians as a member of the first international Oxford Group, from which visited here five years ago.

MRA is the new leadership and the new thought that the world is waiting for," he added. "Our aim is to get a force strong enough to make peace permanent and to end war—a force that is adequate in any crisis. But moral rearmament has to start with ourselves and with our own lives."

Mr. Marjoribanks' hearthstone in the party are Duncan Crookson and Blyth Ramsay, both from Greenwood, shipbuilding center on the Clyde, and a machanic and the other a shipyard laborer, Adam McLean, motor mechanic from Musselburgh, George Wood of Aberdeen, Stuart Smith, who two years ago was president of Glasgow university students union. Dr. Jim Cooper of Orkney, Henry Macmillan, reporter on the Edinburgh Scotsman and Dr. Andrew Campbell Mackay of Inverness.

VERBAL SHOW
A bit on the short side, but with an infectious grin and a ready wit, the group's spokesman, Mr. Marjoribanks, is the most of the time "deals the show." He has been "changing lives" for some two years in the Clyde area, and he says he now "specializes in nazis and aldermen."

His group at home have managed to change a couple of members of the town council, and he now plans to get much better results in dealing with civic business, he declares.

Duncan Isnered for a few minutes with whom he is discussing the present situation in all its aspects.

"I have some reason to hope that this discussion may lead to a settlement of the Danish affair and therefore, while waiting for the treatment of British soldiers by local Japanese officers to which I have referred must cease, I do not want to say anything which would prejudice the prospects of a factory issue with the Japanese government."

The prime minister's statement was made after the foreign affairs committee of the cabinet had discussed both the Russian negotiations and the far eastern incident, there is a growing belief that Great Britain and France will agree this week to accept the Russian terms for a military alliance linking the three countries and compelling the European peace bloc.

promise of enlightenment, declared "Britain's mighty armaments threaten us all and concluded with the declaration:

"Yet I repeat once more, and this is my last word, our opposition to the world there must be adjustments from time to time. But what we are resolved to oppose is the use of force to bring about changes which should be determined by discussion and co-operation, and I trust that despite all dangerous possibilities, which are only too apparent, the people who in all countries cry for peace may yet find this patience and will to achieve it."

The prime minister, devoting a portion of his speech to such foreign affairs, also discussed the visit of the King and Queen to North America, the relations between Britain and the Empire, and the economic situation at home.

NEED FOR UNITY
It was a happy circumstance that the King and Queen should have made their visit this year, he said, as it was the greater need for Imperial unity than there is today.

"The magnificent welcome" the King and Queen received from the President and people of the United States "will always be remembered by us with gratitude and with the hope that we have brought us all nearer together."

Mr. Chamberlain said Britain was sometimes described as "the haven" as opposed to the "have-not" countries of the world. But on historical would say that "we have found our colonial possessions as a refuge in the interests of the mother country."

GOVERN THEMSELVES
On the contrary, British administered various countries with the intention that ultimately they could stand on their own feet and govern themselves.

He declared the "insane process" of accumulating "the means of destroying one another" and said that some day it would all come to an end.

The real tragedy of the European situation stressed the Prime Minister said, "that the future of Europe is being poisoned today by means of propaganda of false and unfounded charges."

"The German people, for instance, are being deceived by the propaganda with assertions that Great Britain is planning to encircle them and enslave them. They are told, meant to them of natural and legitimate expansion of the trade and the exercise of gradually increasing economic pressure designed to lower their standards of life till they are finally crushed and helpless."

The King's English

In his speech in London, made while the sights and sounds of the Royal Visit to Canada and the United States still echoed vividly in his mind, the King gave gracious and fervent expression to the thoughts that dwelt in his mind. His father, King George V, was able to coin many a phrase that rang true when used in the currency of daily speech and part of his gift has been granted his son, the present monarch of the empire.

The King's speech can best be described in negatives. It was not turgid with a false emotion. It did not mistake rhetoric for reality. It was not long or tedious or affected or pompous. It was a little classic, which said all that should be said and it in the most fitting manner.

The King's English, simple, musical, dignified and sincere, should serve as a model to all public men. His father, King George V, was able to coin many a phrase that rang true when used in the currency of daily speech and part of his gift has been granted his son, the present monarch of the empire.

The Guildhall address was the memorable climax to the unforgettable Royal Visit.

A "Floor" For The Market

The Act has been proclaimed which empowers the Dominion Government to guarantee the initial price paid to producers by co-operative associations handling any class of farm products. There had to be a limit of course, and this is set at the average price of the product during the three preceding years.

The arrangement is a conservation measure, not a price-boosting scheme. It puts a "floor" under the market and will prevent further price slumps. The producer will know in advance what is the least he can get for his product. He will get anything more the co-operatives may be able to secure when they sell, or anything more private dealers may offer in competitive bidding. He will not have to fear, should crops be good or more farmers engage in his particular line, that increased production will batter down the price; it can't go below the "pegged" figure.

There will be, it is to be assumed, a marked increase in the number of co-operative associations formed to handle farm products. These will no doubt spring up all over the Dominion, and operate as marketing agents for all kinds of farm products. That is clearly the intention of the framing of the Act, for it is through such associations the stabilizing support of the guaranteed price is to be exerted.

Health Week

This week is to be an official "health week" in Alberta, when health authorities and medical men will give lectures and demonstrations at many points in hope of persuading people to take better care of themselves.

Directly to the point in information just released as to experiments carried on by a doctor in northern India. The people in his district were particularly good specimens of physical fitness. He fed a thousand rats on the diet commonly in use there; with the result that not a rat died and none got sick, though the experiment was carried on for the equivalent of 40 to 50 human years. Two thousand other rats, fed on diets common in other sections of India, developed 39 different diseases, every one similar to some human ailment, running all the way from cancer to heart trouble and tooth decay.

The healthy rats were fed whole wheat bread, butter, legumes, raw carrots, cabbage, whole milk and raw meat; articles making up the menu of the humans in the healthy district. The others were on the more fancy diets used by humans in districts where the physical standard is poorer and sickness more prevalent. The suggestion is that one way people can help to make every week a health week is to live on plain food.

The Yukon Highway

The Alaska highway project—which so far as Canada is concerned is a project to build a highway from a point on the international boundary to a point on the western boundary of the Yukon territory—has progressed to the point where a study of alternative routes is to be made. For this purpose the Canadian section of the International Commission is coming west to hold public hearings at interested points in British Columbia.

Thanks to Hon. J. A. MacKinnon, the proposal is also being studied as making this an Alberta rather than a British Columbia enterprise, by building northward from the existing Alberta highway system. It hardly seems probable at this late stage that Alberta could, if it tried, "Premier Pattison's project; but it is to be hoped means will be taken to impress upon the Commission the desirability of so locating the trunk road that it can be easily linked up with the highway system of this province by one or more connecting highways.

That object in mind, the route from Prince George to Finlay Forks would be preferable to a route further west. There is already a road from Peace River to Ft. St. John—which means from Edmonton to Ft. St. John. The latter point is less than two hundred miles in a straight line from Finlay Forks. Construction of perhaps three hundred miles of new highway, and improvement of the existing roads, would therefore connect up the highway system of Alberta with the Yukon highway at that point. The Monkman Pass highway when completed would provide a second Peace River connection at Prince George.

Next to having the Canadian section of the new highway run through this province instead of British Columbia, the interests of Alberta and the prairie country generally would be best served by extending the existing highway running from Vancouver to Prince George. This route also would have the additional general advantage of being located farther from the coast and less liable to interruption should it ever have to be used for defence purposes. These considerations, it is to be supposed and hoped, will be duly pressed upon the attention of the Commission.

Of the party of 907 Jewish refugees who sailed from Hamburg in May, one was missing when the ship docked at a Belgian port at the end of the return voyage from Cuban waters. He—or she—had committed suicide when told the exiles must go back to Germany. The survivors say 200 of their number made a pact to jump overboard when they learned what was in store for them, and were only prevented carrying out the pledge by vigilance of their companions who refused to abandon hope that some country would open its doors to them. After what is known to have happened in Vienna and Prague and the recent execution of Nazi authority to those cities, the report would have to be disproved to be disbelieved. It will take a lot of Goebbels' propaganda to erase the memory of that death-pact from the world's memory, or to discredit the truthfulness of the report.

The Passing Show

By J. K. COWPER

The entire populace of Libacao in San Salvador spent work a few days ago to celebrate the 100th birthday of Roberto Leao. Senhor Leao is a retired schoolmaster, in full possession of all his faculties. He attributes his long and healthful life to entire abstinence from alcohol and tobacco. On the same day HOW TO LIVE to the newspaper "Liberal" of Valer, Colombia's only living former slave. Dolores is 129 years old. She is hard of hearing, but otherwise is in perfect health. In the photograph she is seen smoking a big black cigar. The lesson seems to be that if you wish to live to be a hundred you should abstain from liquor and tobacco, but if you wish to continue on for another thirty years thereafter, the daily immolation of big black cigars is a help.

The controlled press in Germany, and Rev. Father Coughlin in United States, profess fear lest the visit of Britain's King and Queen to United States means that United States will give up policy of isolation and join with Britain in opposing the Fascist nations. What a mixture of error! United States gave up her policy of isolation in 1917 under threat of naval blockade. She has been open to her people. She would do as again when her interests are threatened. The King and Queen have been open to the people. The American people were pleased with the personalities of the King and Queen of a friendly democracy—and showed it. The British people were surprised by the warmth of the welcome. That the friendship of these two great nations is inviolable, and that the German controlled press about the Royal visit, and the suggestion that the visit to Washington was only possible by having American gangsters held at bay by a wall of steel, is just childish pique.

The Germans and Italians and the radio priest should be satisfied with the declaration of His Holiness on June 11 that the men who fought for Spain brought "a triumph of the Christian ideal" to Spain.

Pablo Picasso, the Spanish artist, has been exhibiting a 250 square foot mural in black and white at his command on the bombing of Guernica. The mural is titled "Guernica." After exhibition in Paris it was placed on exhibition in New York in aid of a Spanish Relief fund. (Doubtless the funds of the Spanish Relief fund will be spent otherwise than on food, since discovery that Picasso is diverting the shipments of food from the starving children, to feed his armies.)

A London Times despatch of April 28, 1937, printed in the catalog, says that "The bombardment of this open town far behind the lines, occupied three hours and a quarter. In the form of its execution and the scope of the destruction it wrought no less than in the selection of its objective, the raid on Guernica is unparalleled in military history." The town of 7000 inhabitants, plus 3,000 refugees, was slowly and systematically pounded to pieces.

Max Gorky at Hamburg and Herr Hitler at Berlin recently complimented the Condor Legion of German Junkers and Heinkel bombers who carried out this triumph of the Christian ideal in Spain.

Seems I was a little premature in accepting the word of Mayor Tedford of Vancouver that he would name the new club after himself. He has $1,000 a month to let the blind pigs and the club operate "wide open." The Mayor, who ran on a platform of transacting all public business in the open, has decided to do otherwise.

THOUGHT HE WAS name the man. However, BEING BRIBED an individual who says he has been bribed to do so.

wrote a letter to the Police Commission requesting a hearing and presented himself for that purpose. The Mayor declined to discuss the matter in public and adjourned to another room.

This unnamed party had been asked to buy by an individual in the name of the investment, and before buying sought to find out if the club were to be interfered with. He says the Mayor asked to find out opinion on his "clean up" campaign and asked how much his visitor thought the underworld would be willing to pay to be left alone.

"I said I was a guess that I supposed they'd be willing to pay $1,000 a month, but I never offered $1,000 a month, either for myself or for anyone else," he says.

Mayor Tedford, in his enthusiasm as a reformer, has spoken in haste before. It's an open question whether he spoke in haste this time. The pure in heart have such evil minds.

WATER FINDERS

I have been, watching a water-finder at work, with his forked stick of agitated. Certainly performance is unsavory—especially when the wretched stick turns in one's own unwilling hands. But, at all of us as we are unwilling to the presence of water beneath the rock.

Naturally, the incident appeared as a parable in spiritual susceptibility. Some persons are reluctant to the deep things of life. Some are not. Many go through the years finding no meaning in existence. Their spirits are unweakened by the universality of the water which lies deep beneath the surface of everydayness.

Others there are—and happily, their name is legion—who are attracted to the depths of life, and to the heights, finding God in all and under all and over all. They are the ones who discover "living water."

Day and night our spirits cry out for the living God. Our prayer is that we may find Him in every one of life's experiences. Amen.

That Alberta!

What sort of place is Alberta? The more facts and documents one collects to answer that question, the more they contradict each other. For example, there comes this letter from one of the Herald's country correspondents: "there used to be quite a few murders here in the early days, but things seem to have improved down a bit of late.... the Indians tribes have had a fight, and this summer will stage two sun dances instead of the usual one. I can't send the details as the Indians haven't yet got back from seeing the King and Queen.... a man came here some time ago and built himself a house in a tree. I don't think he has been in it much lately, though. He lives 15 miles out and as soon as the roads dry up, I am going out to see him."

This letter seems quite sane and normal to us; yet, we suppose, the outside world would read it with amazement. This business of finding out about Alberta calls for strength and patience, the sort of strength and patience, to be truthful, which Albertans alone possess—Calgary Herald.

Britain Helps U. S.

(From The Magazine of Wall Street)

Throughout the world the nationalistic urge for self-sufficiency was never stronger than at present—but this is a relative matter. World trade is not what it used to be, but it is still important, and vitally important to all great nations. The fact is that no large country can operate in an economic vacuum, entirely divorced from tangibly and psychologically from other economies. Our sharp business relapse in 1937-1938 affected many other nations adversely. At the present time the strong economic improvement in Great Britain and France is affecting us favorably.

Over the past five months the rise in British business has been one of the sharpest on record, with present indications pointing to probable attainment this summer of a new all time high by the country index. The strong economic improvement in France the economic improvement since last November has been little short of phenomenal. In each of these countries rising emphasis on rearmament, of course, a major factor. While the armament urge is building up a terrific economic headache for the longer future, with or without war, for some time to come the implications are bullish.

Recovery in Britain and France will tend to help us directly through trade. It will also help us psychologically. Whatever our aversion to foreign entanglement, most Americans instinctively feel that in this troubled world we have a stake in common with the British and the French.

Newspaper readers on June 26, 1880, were shocked to read the death of the previous day of Sir Leonard Tilgh, the great Father of Confederation from New Brunswick. His native province paid sincere homage to his memory and tribute to his years of work to maintain the Loyalist traditions of his province.

Perhaps the most striking legacy of this great modest man, who had been once known as a druggist's errand boy to being twice the representative of his sovereign at Fredericton, was that of the St. John Telegraph. It was one of the drawbacks of this human life that the wise, the learned, the good and those whom we most love and honor, grow old and feeble, and fall by the wayside and are gone. While we lament the death of Sir Leonard Tilgh, we must recognize it as an event that was inevitable—rich could not have been spared. His life work was done. His labors were ended; his active and brilliant career was closed; but his memory will live not only in the hearts of all his countrymen but enshrined in the history of this, his native province, which he did so much to create and which he so fondly loved.

Sir Leonard knew that his end was near when one Sunday he found that it was all he could do to climb the hill to St. Mark's church. He had always refused to be buried in a church. "I should never think of having the honors heaped on the Sabbath," he said, and so, Sunday, June 26, 1880, he was buried in the cemetery. He had been ill for some time, but he had passed his 78th birthday, he had to be added to the list. Then he knew the end was not far off, and when he died he had in his hands that same Bible from which he selected the Psalm as the baptism of the confederation, which tells of dominion from sea to sea, that dominion which he did so much to create and build.

"Now," said the youth, after getting his father seated at the football game, "you'll see more excitement for two dollars than you ever saw before."

"I don't know," replied the old gent. "That's what my mother-in-law used to say."

Mrs. McTavish was making the last payment on the baby buggy and the clerk, in duty, thought it best to converse. "And how is the baby, Mrs. McTavish?"

"Oh, he's just fine; he's getting married next week."

"I hope you keep your cows in a pasture," said Mrs. Newcomb as she passed the milkman.

"Yes, madam," replied the milkman, "we keep them in a pasture."

"I'm so glad. I've been told that pastured milk is much the best."

Editorial Training

Cadet, Bulletin. The following letter has been sent by The Canadian Corps Association to Gen. Gleave of the Edmonton Public School Board:

The executive and members of the Canadian Corps Association hereby endorse your resolution to re-establish cadet training in the Edmonton public schools. Our association represents over eighteen hundred veterans who saw service in an actual theatre of war during the years 1914-1918, and as veterans know just what cadet training does mean to boys in their teen age.

In the first place it teaches discipline, self respect, manliness and cleanliness. It instills in the boys a sense of responsibility to each other as well as to society and respect to their elders and to those in authority. Discipline as taught engenders self reliance and the ability to think sanely and quickly in an emergency.

Adelin, and this is by no means the least important, there is no better method of improving the physical well-being of the youth than by the regular exercise involved in such training. The writer and other members of our executive have spoken to a number of school teachers, who inform us that discipline in the schools has been declining since cadet training has been discontinued. We are further informed from these sources that even physical training as now carried out has dropped all standards of military precision and ceases to teach any degree of discipline.

There is a certain amount of cadet training that is heard of some of our 11 informed quarters that we
